Our (Starbucks) Starbooks Coffee Corner ☺

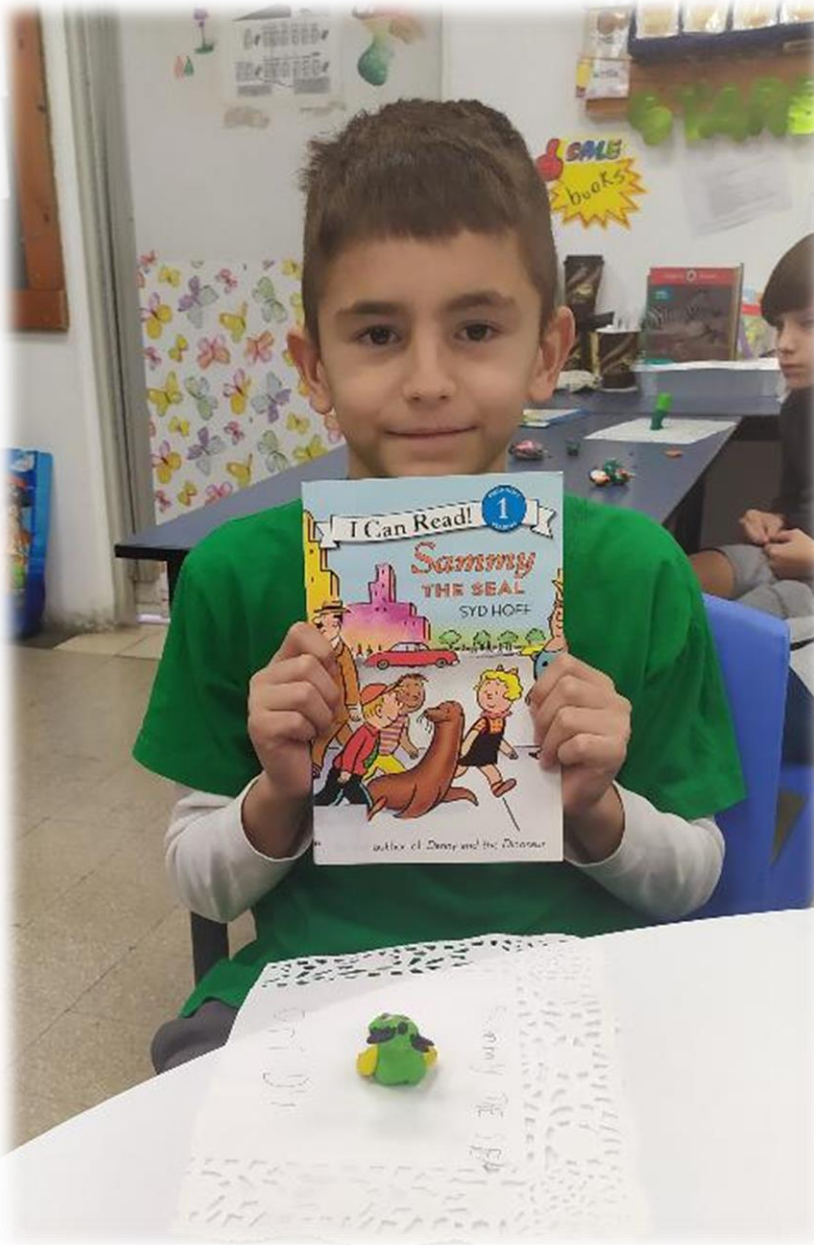

A Five Fingers Instruction was presented to the pupils - they were taught How to Choose their Books?

1. Choose a book that "looks" at you.
2. Open the book to any page.
3. Go over the words.
4. Count the number of words that you don't know.
5. If it's more than five, look at another book.

Ongoing activities:

*Get time to read your books...

*Informal talks with the pupils about their books.

*Pupils choose one thing to tell about their books to the class.

*Writing activities:

"Open your book to page 36, find line three, copy it to your notebooks. What happened before the line? What happened after?"

*Use your vocabulary notebooks to "collect" new words.

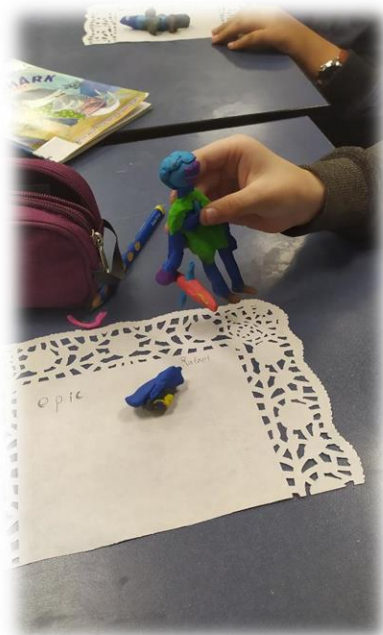

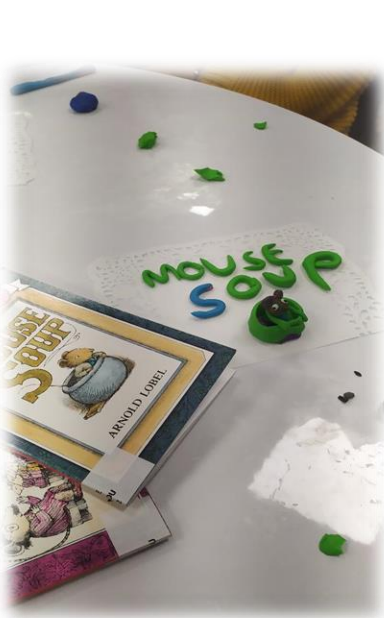

*Teacher-reading time to the class (put your heads on the table).

Activities that took place in every parallel

Choose a character or an item from your book and use playdough to present it.

Each child prepared a set of "emoji": happy, sad, excited, hungry...By the end of the free reading time, the teacher asks: How do you feel? The pupils show the suitable emoji.

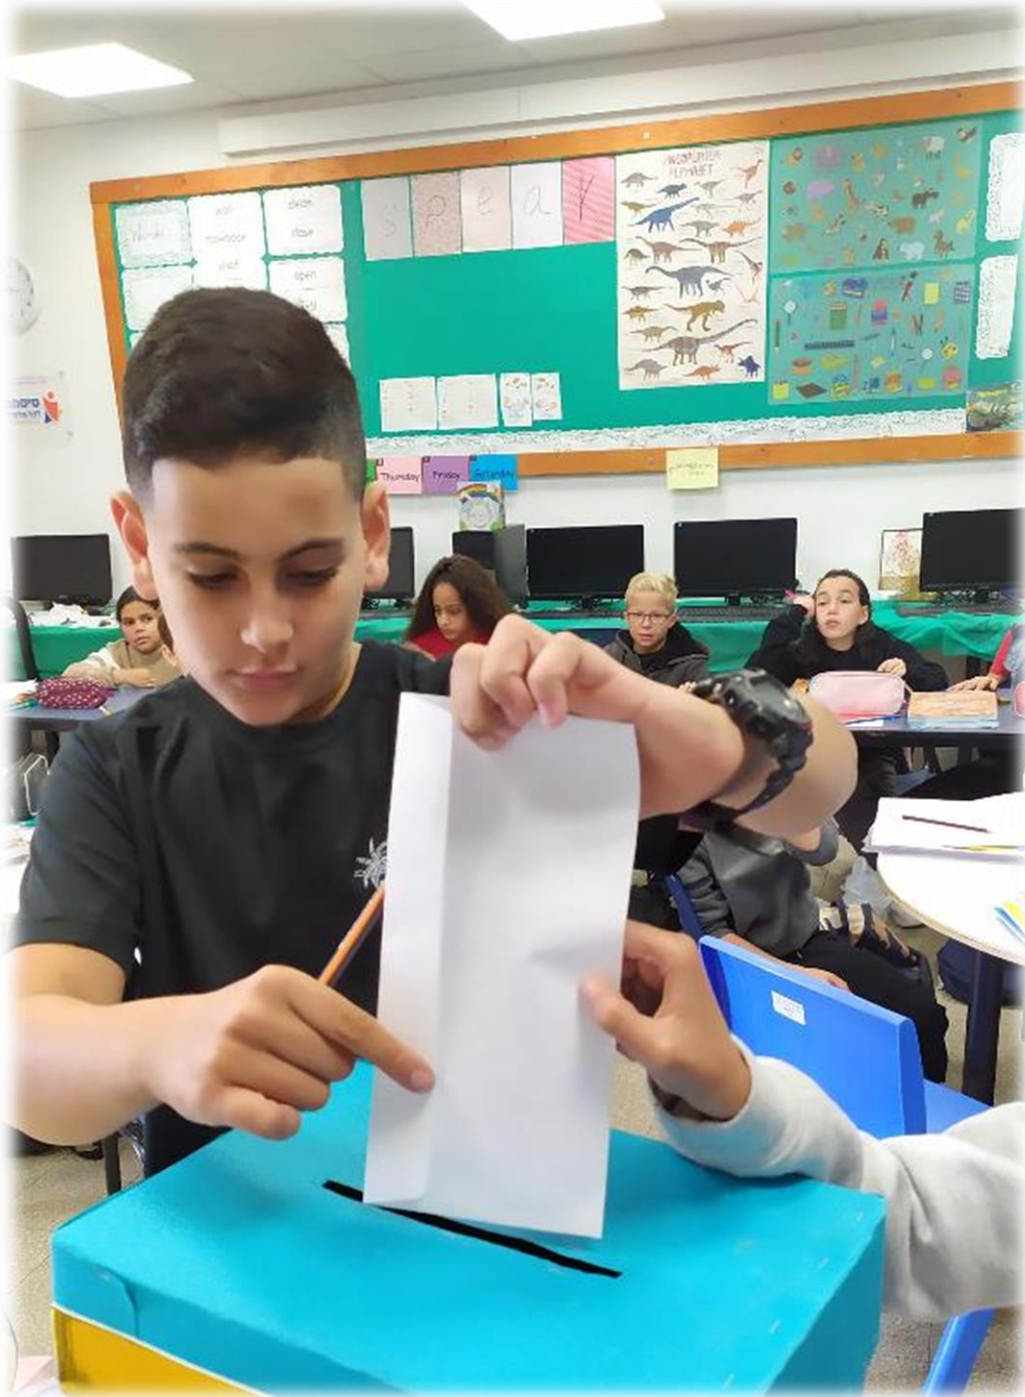

Choose (elect) your book...

The pupils prepared cards that illustrate books that can be chosen by pupils.

The fifth graders had to choose one card, put it in the envelope and then "send" it to the election box.

Sixth grades are working now on class presentations, based on "The Secret Garden". Since it's the Speaking Year at "Almog" school, the importance of spoken presentation is emphasized.

Future activities:

*Book Presentations for our School TED.

*The presentations will be uploaded to a closed YouTube Channel.

*'Find your book' Treasure Hunt.

*Recording audiobooks by our sixth graders for smaller children.

*AlmogCity event - where there will be a library station.
